

Large families

Large families are officially recognized by the government of Spain with an official designation and a number of other State benefits.

This recognition is granted by the Department of Social Welfare and Family Affairs (General Office for Civic Action). In Catalonia, the recognition of this status grants a series of rights, including a specific ID card for each member of the family. This, in turn, allows the said members to enjoy a series of benefits at a number of institutions, entities, commercial establishments, etc, as established in the resource and service guide.
